THE RULES OF BUSH POETRY

© Leo Keane, Hughesdale, Vic.

I asked a rural poet The secrets of his craft And wouldn't you just know it? The beggar simply laughed.

"You manipulate the language In a hundred different ways To achieve a rhyming couplet Or a memorable phrase."

"You use alliteration And a metaphor or two Your grammar must be perfect Your rhyming patterns too."

"You can't be repetitious You mustn't use clichés Your adjectives descriptive In so many different ways."

" The syllables in every line Should be quite uniform To assonance enjambment You'll slavishly conform."

"You'll discover that your poem Is considerably sweeter If you keep close observance Upon the strictest meter."

"Use some imagination In the format of your verse A pedestrian approach is bad There's really nothing worse."

"These simple rules are helpful I trust it's all made clear And oft times it's a help to use Some onomatopoeia."

The full depth of his wisdom Had made a deep impression. How many of his printed works Had he in his possession?

Could he nominate a published work I'd put upon my shelf? "Good heavens, no, I only write To please my bloody self!" DAGWORTH STATION © John Harris, Kalang, NSW

Way back in the eighties In the mighty shearer's strike The shearers all swore vengeance On those they didn't like.

So they came to Dagworth Station Just to burn the woolshed down and nobody was going to stop them From burning it to the ground.

They loaded up their rifles And each man took his mark, But did they think of murder, As they waited in the dark.

It was dark enough to hide them As they started up the fight And poured a deadly barrage At any Station light.

They knew who they were firing at, There wasn't any error, That Station wives and children Were subjects of their terror.

Even though outnumbered The troopers stood their ground And their courage never wavered As they fired another round.

The battle raged deep in the night As countless shots were fired But not a shot would find it's mark And trigger fingers tired. Yet somehow in the thick of things Someone lit the spark And Dagworth Station's woolshed Became a bonfire in the dark.

There at Dagworth Station At the rising of the sun Could be seen the awful damage Where shearers came with guns.

The passions that had boiled, Amonst those, the shearers damned, Had served to create victims Of a hundred and forty lambs.

The shearers claimed a victory for the things that they had done, But, they didn't hang around for praise When morning's light had come.

There were questions when they found him With a bullet in his head, And no-one could really tell you How Hoffmeister wound up dead?

> They put it to the Coroner To find out what was done Was it suicide, or murder? When death was by the gun.

It was not a certain answer Of why, or how he died? Just a dirty death, and history Of nothing done with pride.

'BLUE THE SHEARER' FAN CLUB PERFORMS

The 'Blue the Shearer' Fan Club held their first Bush Poets night recently at the Bega Bank Hotel as the opening event for the Bega Festival.

The night was in the form of a Poets Dinner and was booked out well in advance. Unfortunately "Blue" could not attend, due to health problems, but sent us a special tape to begin the night.

Local poets plus a visitor from Tasmania took part and each table had to present one of Blue's poems plus write and present a poem on the night.

All were impressed with the night and more are planned for the New Year and the next Bega Festival. If any Bush Poets out there will be visiting the Bega Valley, let us know and we'll invite you to our Bush Poets Night. The next is planned for January, '99.

Also, I have a special request. As we are researching the history of Blue, especially his shearing exploits, and we are having some difficulty with this, as

Blue himself is very tight lipped about it. Jim Haynes has agreed to give us the details of his visit to Wheelabarraback, but we know there is much more out there. Please contact me, regardles of how unimportant you may think your information is and we will produce the full history of 'Blue the Shearer'. By the way, money we raise is used to supply schools with books and tapes etc of Australian Bush Poetry. Ces Cox, Sec. Blue the Shearer Fan Club

Dear Members I have been ov

Secretary's Notes

I have been overwhelmed by the sweet greetings I have received over the festive season from members who sent messages to the committee. We do appreciate your thoughts, and I thank you very much.

On behalf of the Committee, I wish you a Happy New Year and may you all enjoy good health. I hope that those of you who have had health troubles in 1998 will go into 1999 feeling much better.

We wish to record our thanks to Maureen Garner for the untiring work she undertakes to put out and keep up the standard of our monthly newsletter. Only those who have done it can appreciate the time taken, and so cheerfully. Nothing is too much trouble.

We have clubs who are members of our association, and receive a copy of our newsletter. It makes us happy to know that members of those clubs are interested in our news, but we do not wish it copied for club members' information. People who want to receive a copy of their own or any part of it, should join the A.B.P.A. Inc., in fairness to the Association (See notice above).

Printing costs of this newsletter are a major worry. It may mean that the newsletter has to be condensed into 16 or 18 pages, but I don't think that this will detract from it's interest.

I have had some pleasing orders for the forthcoming Annual Book of Verse. If you feel that you may be able to sell some or want to order in any quantity, I could take them to Tamworth to save postage. They could be picked up at the Annual Meeting or by arrangements somewhere in the week leading up to it. The

Presidents Report

1998 is now past and it is hard to believe that just four years ago, this Association was formed in Tamworth with just 22 members. Since 1994 we have grown from those 22 original members to almost 400 members dedicated to the spoken word.

I'd like to thank all members for their dedication and their imput into this Association over the past year, and hope that it will continue on into 1999 and beyond.

I'd particularly like to thank Olive Shooter, Maureen Garner, Elizabeth Ward and Bob Miller for their assistance in bringing you the member, an association that, I feel, we can all be totally proud of. Thank you also to all the members who have sent in poems, information and reports.

Bush Poetry has had a few ups and downs in the past year, and like all other clubs or associations, it has had a few knockers but they have been totally outweighed by the supporters of this form of art that we have pursued. The old saying "The pen is mightier than the sword" has been vindicated by the phenomenal rise we have seen in the past few years of the amount of ordinary people, like you and me, who have received so much enjoyment from the spoken word and the great rise in membership of our Association.

In Tamworth, we will be holding our A.G.M. and it will be up to you, the member, to decide if this Association will continue to be such a great force in the world of the true Australian Bush Poetry. So, make an effort of attending the meeting and voting in a committee that will continue to uphold the high standards we have known in the past.

We have had a lot of comments and discussions through our magazine on subjects such as 'Judging' and 'Competitions' or definitions of 'Bush Poetry' and that is what the magazine is there for ... YOU ... the member can control the amount of imput into the magazine and the type of material and poems that are printed that will interest you, or any other individual that happens to read our magazine.

The amount of feedback we have received concerning the various competitions around the country and the results of those competitions and the enquiries about where to obtain poets' books etc. is justification in supporting this Association and magazine. But it can only continue with the help and dedication of you the member. I hope that every member enjoyed a trouble free and enjoyable festive season and wish all a Prosperous and Happy Poetic New Year. Row Selby. President second year Annual is almost sold out with about 40 copies left and the last two are still plentiful. We would love to get rid of the backlog. Still $3.00 each.

Our President, Ron Selby has a book out, "A Born Loser Can Sometimes Win." I recommend it to you. He gave me a copy and I was in. I read to the end. A short review can be found on P12.

The Annual Meeting will start at 2.30pm sharp on Sat. 23rd at St Peters Church Hall, Vera Street, Tamworth. Please come if you can and bring your newsletters with the proposed changes to the Constitution (i.e. October and November).

'n.

If you need to contact me before I go to Tamworth, I expect to be going on about the 15th. I look forward to seeing any of you there. Come up and make yourself known to me.

All the excitement of a family Christmas is gone again. Now it is back to getting the books ready for the Auditor. My fond regards and best wishes to you all, Olive Skooter.

"LAUGHS, LARRIKINS & LOVELY LADIES" BOOK LAUNCH IN TAMWORTH

The best laugh yet is to hit or bookstands, when Glenny Palmer's newest book lands in Tamworth this month. "Laughs, Larrikins and Lovely Ladies" has everything from hilarious stories about her larrikin Dad, to award winning poems covering all subjects from "... the mongrel banks...", to proud grandmothers. Of course, it wouldn't be a Palmer offering if the boys didn't get a bit of a tongue in cheek beat up. There is even a section for the kids.

Glenny's book launch is set to take place at Kelly & Marion Dixon's exciting new "Cattle Camp Kitchen" venue, in Cross Park, Tamworth on Friday, 22nd January at 6pm. Her good mate, musician Stan Lenz, (composer of the popular "Wobbly Boot" song performed on Rolf Harris and Slim Dusty's new album), will be mixing it with Glenny on the night. Glenny's book will be available for sale for $15.00.

So Mark it on your calendar ... you can have a top feed, a top show, and still get an early night. (Or you could party on afterwards?)

Glenny, who has collaborated with Stan Lenz will also make an appearance during the launch of his new Album "Following A Dream", scheduled for 7pm on Thursday 21st January at the Cattle Camp venue in Cross Park.

Word is out around the traps that Stan is appealing to all his supporters to come and sing to help drown her out.

This sure could be a night to remember - don't miss it.

SEX, LIES and POETRY

Despite the name, "Sex, Lies and Poetry" promises to provide over two hours of good family fun for bush poetry fans at Tamworth Golf Club this year. Shows are scheduled for Friday 15th, Saturday 16th and Monday 18th January at 8pm.

Featuring in the show will be John Major, a traditional poet who will combine the great poems of the past with plenty of modern humorous material to send you home happy. Rupert McCall, Queensland's own world acclaimed sports poet will make his first appearance in Tamworth, so don't miss this opportunity to hear this talented and amicable young man.

Seasoned, veteran performer and Inaugural Australian Champion Poet, Gary Fogarty will assure the audience laughter aplenty, with his tales of Line Dancers and the Greenmount Ball, and more. Also appearing, Neil McArthur, who took Tamworth by storm last year will be working hard to keep you all on the edge of your seat or rolling in the aisles - great talent.

The fairer sex will be well represented by 1999 Bush Laureate Finalist, Joy Major who will perform on Monday 18th.

Mike Horswood, a multi award winning country singer from Chinchilla, Q will also appear to add a musical touch to the evening. You will indeed enjoy his talent. Beat the heat in this air conditioned club and enjoy this great show. Bookings 02 6765 9393.

BUSH LAUREATE IN FOURTH YEAR

POET PROFILE - CAROL REFFOLD

Born in the small village of Chilworth, Surrey in the UK, Carol began to write Bush Verse in the late '80s

Dallarnil, Queensland, Carol was enchanted with the performance of an entertainer at the event, who rode a penny farthing bicycle male and female performers to win the "Overall Champion Poet". while a voice over the public address system recited Banjo Her prize was accommodation and entry into the Nambucca Valley Paterson's "Mulga Bill's Bicycle". Carol describes it as the most NSW "Bards of Bowra" Bush Poetry Competition where she uniquely, crazy piece of Australiana which she has ever witnessed. performed, endearing herself to audiences at several events. Thus began her quest as a performer, to share her love of Australia and it's Bush Poetry with others.

performing her original poetry and the traditional works of performances throughout the voyage. Australia's great bards. She was elected to the executive of the group and currently is it's secretary. Carol is a regular performer at on stage where she shows to perfection her obvious love of the craft. the many Bush Poetry events and festivals throughout the country - Her ambition is to perform Australian Bush Poetry to international from Camooweal and Hungerford in the hot, dry North East of audiences ... and she will !!!

Queensland, to Maldon in the cool greenness of Victoria, and may places in between.

Undoubtedly, her career highlight was at the Rams Head Whilst watching her boys ride bulls at a rodeo at Hotel (Millmerran, Q) Bush Poetry Performance Competition in September, 1998, where she competed against a strong field of both

A recent cruise on the "Fair Princess", saw her performing her own full show, where her talents were well received by fellow She joined the "Bundy Mob", where she began passengers, many of whom often requested impromptu

Carol offers a charming and often humerous presentation

PUNCTUATE OR PERISH? (or at least look pretty crook on the page.)

Reading words aloud, we use several effects to help convey the poet's exact meaning to the listener - long & short pauses, rising and falling inflections, varying tones and volumes, etcetera.

Likewise, punctuation has been developed for the same purpose - to make the writer's meaning clear to the reader. As poets, we fail our readers if we don't make effective use of the punctuation tools.

'All very well,' I hear you say, 'but some of us are confused about the rules. Besides, a lot of modern poems have no punctuation at all.'

Which is true, I admit. How many readers throw up their hands in disgust, unable to make sense of such poems, because lack of punctuation causes confusion and ambiguity? The effect is worsened if the poet has adopted another current fad - a refusal to use capital letters. As the late Charlee Marshall observed on this subject, 'If I want to be puzzled, I prefer to do a crossword.'

What are the rules? Most dictionaries, including the Macquarie, have sections devoted to punctuation. These rules apply to formal writing and increasingly are being relaxed in fictional prose and in verse. This article is written - so far - in a formal style, including complete grammatical sentences (I trust!) The majority of poems in traditional/bush-verse form would also follow this pattern. However a poem might also include passages in which the poet expresses his immediate thought processes or his spoken words; neither of which operates in a full sentence form. For example, consider the line:

No longer safe up here. That sound? A cat perhaps. What this equals in formal prose terms is:

It is no longer safe up here. What is that sound? It's a cat perhaps.

In my view (others might disagree) the punctuation in the poetic version should follow what would be used in the prose form. In that way, the appropriate pauses would be retained. Some writers might prefer to use commas only between the three sections of the line and use lower case what and it's. I feel this would weaken the dramatic effect of the line.

Am I getting too complicated? Perhaps I should stick to some general principals:

(A) Use a full stop at the end of a sentence or at a completed short statement (as in the above A cat perhaps.) The following word should begin with a capital letter.

BELTAIN FOLK & MYTH FESTIVAL Wilberforce NSW

Held in the grounds of the historic Hawkesbury Village farm at Windsor, the 2nd Folk and Myth Festival was held on 30th October and 1st November, 1998.

Festival organisers Lydia and Danielle successfully brought together both Celtic and Folk aficinado's to enjoy a weekend that presented elements from both cultures.

An open air "Poets Breckkie" was held underneath the gum trees amidst the old farming equipment giving the whole affair a very rustic nature. Warren "Arch" Bishop was the genial MC and was joined by Graeme Johnson, Bill Lasham, Richard Mills, Jenny (B) Use a comma for short pauses within a sentence which are necessary to make the meaning clear or between items in a list. For example, with no punctuation the following is ambiguous - He was not beaten mercifully.

A comma after beaten resolves the paradox of there being such a thing as a merciful beating.

Similarly in a line, She packed the sewing, books and tent, without the comma the reader might imagine she had packed sewing books.

There are so many examples in this article where commas are used to mirror the way, in a spoken passage, we vary our tone of voice, delay subject words or shift emphasis. Commas carry a fair burden in most poems.

(C) Use a question mark at the end of an obvious question. Follow with a capital. There are some occasions when you have a choice. Some might prefer a question mark after A cat perhaps, in the above example. It depends upon whether a rising inflection is what is intended in the spoken version.

(D) Use an exclamation mark after - you've guessed it! - an exclamation. But a word of warning: don't overdo it! (as I have done.) It's a weapon to be used sparingly and loses its shock value if the poem is cluttered with random exclamations. A full stop is usually sufficient.

(E) Use a colon or semi-colon with caution and only if you are confident in its use and are sure a full stop or a comma will not do the job equally well. You will see I have used a colon a few times in this article; also I have used a dash; and a couple of semi-colons. Get the message? If still in doubt, I suggest you have a slow study of the dictionary, for the full range of occasions when these punctuations are appropriate.

(F) Use quotation marks at each end of a direct quote within a passage. You have a choice of single or double sets. The message is: be consistent throughout. If you choose single, which the Macquarie recommends, and you need to make a quote within a quote, this should be in double; and viceversa if you start off with double. For example:

He said, 'I told him, "Go to hell!" and that was that.'

I am afraid punctuation, spelling and grammar are subjects which until recently have been neglected by many of our educational authorities, on the basis of their being 'picked up naturally' in later life. If this small effort has been of some help in redressing this neglect for bush poets, I will be well pleased. Ron Stevens. Dubbo. NSW.

Carter and Yuri the Storyteller.

Warren and Graeme also presented their own shows during the Saturday in the "Oxboro Inn" a faithfully recreated turn of the century cottage.

Richard Mills shared his personal skills in a workshop "For Men Only", (sorry girls, no telling about this one) also giving further advice about "Finding your voice" during another meeting whilst Graeme Johnson held an informative "Poetry Writing" session attended by all ages (even a couple of school children eager to learn).

While only in it's second year, this festival certainly kept the crowds busy with it's wide range of activities and artists.

BUSH POETRY IN VICTORIA

We are making slow inroads into the entertainment scene in Victoria. This year I have worked with a few other poets like Neil McArthur Johnny Johanson, Geoffrey Graham and the Kyabram Bush Verse Group. Reception has been great at all venues, with most audiences saying that they never knew what to expect. They all claim that they will be back to watch Bush Poets again.

At the moment we find it best to use our bush poetry as a back up at a country music venue as our poetry does not appear to be a drawcard on it's own at present - but we're working on changing that situation.

Since coming home from Tamworth last year, I have been involved, performing at several festivals and fundraising events and have several bookings for this year. Examples are - Toolenvale country Fair, Kyneton Country Music Festival, Inglewood Blue Eucy Festival, Tarnagulla Gold Festival, Dunolly and Trentham Hospital Fund Raisers. Several venues at which I performed last year, had never seen Bush Poetry performances and they are looking forward to future performances.

Other existing venues that appear to be getting stronger are Charlton Bush Poets Breakfast run by Geoffrey Graham, Bendigo Bush Poets Brunch and the Maldon Folk Festival.

This year I have performed at a few corporate shows for DCNR, the Victorian Grasslands Society, Bendigo Arts Council, Passing Clouds Winery Spring Release, Balgownie Winery, Bendigo Writers Group and the Bendigo Country Song Writers Group. I regularly provide back up for the Bush Larrikin Band in the Central Victorian area. and for the Boorooban Hotel near Hay. Also for recent Chad Morgan and Craig Giles shows.

Pre Christmas performances at Bendigo Senior Citizens Christmas Party, Campase Pioneer Museum (the birthplace of the Sunshine Harvester) and New Years Eve at Romani Station in Hay, NSW were all well received

The highlight of my year was when I was invited by the "Save Ironbark" Committee to assist in the protest to save the name of the suburb of Ironbark in Bendigo when the government wanted to remove it. I wrote a short protest poem that lead into Banjo's "The Man from Ironbark" and performed it at the hand over of petitions with approx. 3000 signatures.

This generated great media coverage - local TV, radio, newspapers as well as the Melbourne Sunday Sun Herald three weeks in a row, and the Aussie Post magazine.

I am pleased to say that we have Ironbark back on the new draft maps, as Ironbark was where I first lived when I shifted back to Bendigo way back in 1967.

Good luck to all and have a safe Festive Season,

Peter (Whipstick Worths) Worthington

POET PROFILE PETER WORTHINGTON - "Whipstick Wortho"

Peter was born in Melbourne in 1945 and his family moved in 1949 to Robinvale, a Murray River town in the Mallee.

He was invited to leave school on his 14th birthday and began work as a masonry tradesman with his father and grandfather where he worked as a brickie, concreter, stone mason etc. He worked between seven and eight months of the year because of the local seasonal work. He filled in time working on farms as a stockman, fencer, shearing shed worker, rabbit trapper, kangaroo shooter etc.

He joined the CMF, now the Army Reserve at age 17 and volunteered for national service in 1965 and as a corporal, was posted home to his own unit as a recruit training instructor.

He moved to the Bendigo suburb of Ironbark and in 1967 started a career with the PMG, later Telecom where he began work as a linesman and finished as a Senior Technical Instructor in 1988 following the closure of the depot.

Peter enjoys his family of four and this 21/2 grandchildren.

He took up writing poetry in joke form for the Raywood Hotel near home, a series of poems called the "Wally of the Week". The best of these stories are soon to be printed as "Feral Fred from Feralborough".

Although his poetry career has been short, he is performing weekly at the local and has been well received at another 20 venues in the last year.

"MURDER, BLOODY MURDER"

cried the residents of the small suburb of Bendigo known for many years as Ironbark when they found that in the redrawing of city maps their suburb was eliminated. Located in the western part of Bendigo near Eaglehawk, 160 kms north of Melbourne, Ironbark was one of the first suburbs established in what was then Sandhurst, back in 1851.

The City of Greater Bendigo was requested by the State Government to clarify names and boundaries within the city for the benefit of emergency services, the Electoral Commission, Australia Post and other authorities.

But the people of Ironbark were horrified to find their suburb had disappeared from the new map. Modern residents of the area, who number 400 these days, felt more than indignant when they read in the Bendigo Advertiser their suburb had been axed.

Ironbark, of course was made famous by Banjo Paterson in his poem "The Man from Ironbark"

Local resident, Judy Kidd organised more than 1000 signatures on a petition and orchestrated a letter writing campaign to reverse the decision.

Bush Poet, and long time past resident of Ironbark, Peter Worthington recited "The Man from Ironbark" at the handover of Mrs. Kidd's petition to council.

Peter commented that "the city bureaucrats thought Ironbark was so small it cold be rubbed off the map with the stroke of a pen. They spend a fortune on heritage building. If they take our name away it makes them a bunch of hypocrites" he said.

Eventually the almighty force of "people power" prevailed and the City of Greater Bendigo have acceded to the residents request to retain the name of this historic area. They say clouds have a silver lining, but you have to be prepared to get up and polish the chrome. Congratulations to the cresidents of Ironbark for their success.

OUR LAND

© Johnny Johanson, Yarrawonga Vic.

"Have you felt the silk caress of a gentle wind, On a balmy summer's night?" "Have you seen the brilliant reds of a western sky As the sun slips out of sight"?

"Have you seen the glistening grass with it's pearls of dew, Sparkle in a new born day?" Washed of the dust from the day before, "Nature" cleans her day this way!

"Have you seen the leaves that move to and fro, As they're brushed by a morning breeze, Like a billion fans swaying to the songs, Of the birds singing in the trees?"

"Have you seen their stage, lit by an early sun,

As it peeps 'round the curve of earth?" With those coloured hues of every kind, Makes them sing for all their worth!

This beauty is nature's backdrop, These colours no brush could hold, For they move and change, as the light shines through, Silhouettes: of the gums unfold!

"Have you heard the music, of this wonderous land?" "Have you seen swallows dive and dart?" For to see this play at the break of day Does gladden the saddest heart!

"Have you seen tiny Wrens and Willy Wagtails, On fence wires stretched so tight?" "Have you seen them prance, jig their lively dance, As birds herald the day's first light?"

"Have you seen, flocks of geese - rising to the sky, At the start of an early morn?" All these pleasures of Australia, As our land gives birth to dawn?"

"Have you seen Roly-poly spin and twirl, Like when Ballerina's play, As a Willy-Willy hovers close, Then they pirouette away?"

"Have you seen the silvery flash of a hungry fish, as it leaps from waters deep?" These joys are here for everyone, Yet most of the people sleep!

"Have you seen a mother swan, drift quietly by, On a gentle flowing stream?" "Have you seen her chicks strung out behind, Like some calm and peaceful dream?"

"Have you seen the silent wings of a gliding hawk, With his sharp and evil stare, Seen him drift on thermal currents, Just a speck in the sky up there?"

"Have you seen a hawk plummet like a rock, From those heavens oh so high, Then; snatch a chick from a mother swan?" For to live; so one must die!

NEW CHAMPIONSHIP TROPHY PLAQUE

The Murray River Bush Poetry and Yarn Spinning Mob have also donated a one off, never to be found again,, Red Gum Burl, cut in the shape of the map of Australia which will be used as the Australian Bush Poetry Championship Plaque.

This plaque is roughly three feet by three feet. It has space for hundreds of engraved metal shields with past and future winners names, town and state and will most certainly be passed on to wherever the Championships will be held.

It would be nearly impossible to place a value on this unique slice of history which would most probably take at least a thousand years to grow, let alone in the shape of the Australian Map when finished. A conservative estimate of value would be around $10,000.

A beautiful piece of art by mother nature, and a thousand hours of loving work and care to bring it to it's marvelous finish.

For all poets and lovers of fine art. Johnny Johanson.

THANK YOU

The final count was 43 items, mostly books, some tapes and a video which raised $1,400 (three times their retail value). Overall, the total auction proceeds amounted to $20,000, so it was a tremendous success and everyone concerned sends their thanks to the Bush Poets who generously donated their products.

I'M NOT RIDING SIR

© Merv Webster "The Goondiwindi Grey" Bundaberg, Q

Dedicated to a great horseman and bushman as well as a true blue Aussie character.

While sitting in the Vic Hotel Out Goondiwindi way, This burnt out ringer and his horse Reined in and said, "G'Day!"

We'd all been playing 301 He asked could he join in "Sure thing old mate!" we all agreed Which brought a toothless grin.

"The name is Paddy Melon boys -I'll have a pot please love -I feel I'm on a winning streak Or there's no God above".

He sat there perched upon a stool Between the pub's doorway, And held the reins of his old horse, It sensed he planned to stay.

The pot went down and time flashed by, He won near ev'ry game, But Paddy's knees were bowing fast, His aim a bit the same.

By late that 'arve the wobbly boot Had taken full control, Old Paddy's winning streak had gone And Nick had claimed his soul.

Poor Paddy's darts they missed their mark,, The grog had soaked his brains, But Paddy he just blamed the horse. "Stop pulling on the reins!"

The boys in blue had called in too And warned him there and then, "We catch you riding that horse drunk, You'll see a cell ag'en.

Old Paddy broke and out of luck Resigned to riding off And as he rode into the night He gave a smokers cough.

He'd only gone a block or two When who should drive on past. It was the boys in blue of course, They turned around real fast.

But Paddy though had seen them too And instinct then took hold, He jumped behind the saddle quick, His grin was brazen, bold.

The constable looked up at him, He'd teach this ringer what. "We told you not to ride that horse, You poor old drunken sot!"

But Paddy said, "You've got it wrong, I am not riding Sir, You see on this old horse my friend I'm just a passenger!"

"MUSIC AT THE CREEK" Majors Creek Folk Festival 6th-8th November, 1998

Once again the tiny village of Majors Creek (near Braidwood NSW) was enveloped by the swirling Sth Coast fogs and swamped by an influx of visitors for this years "Music at the Creek" Festival. The delightfully isolated location seems to enhance that feeling of togetherness that Festivals bring through the beauty of it's surrounding countryside and the friendly warmth of it's local population.

Poetry was once again at the fore as far as entertainment goes. The Poets Breakfasts held under the awning of the Beer Tent were hosted by master comedian, singer, songwriter and general all about rascal Martin Pearson as well as the ABPA'S 'Rhymer from Ryde" Graeme Johnson and were full to overflowing both days, (the audience, not the comperes).

Upwards of 24 poets went about their spruiking at each event stretching the time limit allotted as only poets can. As well as the hosts, Dave Meyers and Laurie McDonald flew the Queanbeyan Bush Poets Banner. Festival organiser, Peter Gillespie made an appearance, as did Campbell the Swaggie No 3? and Rhymin' Simon. Campbell also held sway at the Food Court venue through the day.

Others to grace the floor were Gail Struthers, Laurie McCrimmon, Ralph Murphy, Delia Ossicker, Wally the Local, Tim Shirley, Col Wright, Steve Reed, Jan Lewis, Julie Brennan, Lou Gower, Jane Faulkner and Graham Hume amongst others.

Other highlights included the "Hour of Madness", a concert combining verse/song and 'double entendre' starring Bernard Boland, Martin, Graeme, Bruce Watson and Keith Leech. Graeme also appeared on the afternoon program with his own Poetry Performance space combining both original and traditional work from the masters of the past to the writers of today.

Festival organiser Peter went out of his way to express his thanks to all the poets who had travelled from far and wide to add their energy to that of the weekend.

Yours, Cervus Wright

Poetry in the Park

Despite competing with the Pageant, it was a relaxing afternoon. We had people come to listen and people come to read. One notable visitor, published poet George Jenkins, who then came and read again at our last meeting. I hope we all hear more of George!

Christmas Bush Poets

A fair crowd enjoyed our Christmas Dinner at the Alma Hotel where we enjoyed fairly flamboyant festive fun and frivolity. How's that for flirting feverishly and fastidiously with the finer facts of eF words?

Next Year, What's On ??

SA Bush Poets are booked into the whole program of the Barmera-Berri Riverland Country Music Festival with plenty to do and say. Don't miss this one if you're a dedicated SA Bush Poet. You will also have to book accommodation early.

The Stars of Willunga Poetry Festival - still unfolding, to be held in 1999 and we will be asked to help, host, organise and perform at various shows - we'll keep you posted.

The Willunga Almond Blossom Festival. After a very successful 1998, we look forward to a more improved program and an even better performance.

If any members of the Association are travelling over the holidays or at any other time please call so that we can get together.

My final task is to personally thank all those who donated elbow grease for this past year. Without the help of others, SA Bush Poets would not have been so successful in 1998.Best wishes to everyone for 1999,

Peter Chapman

POET PROFILE PETER CHAPMAN - Aldinga, SA

Peter Chapman was born in Tamworth (Australia's Country Music Capital on 1st April (April Fools Day).

He grew up on farms in New South Wales. His schooling was troubled by dislexia, a difficulty in reading and writing. Nevertheless, his love for literature developed his love for writing Bush Poetry.

After finishing his carpentry apprenticeship Peter travelled and worked across Australia.

Peter now works in Adelaide, running his own carpentry business and on the side does his best to keep Bush Poetry alive with the South Australian Bush Poets Group.

Peter's style throughout his poetry has a distinct brand of bush philosophy of the down to earth, realistic "Aussie".

OUTBACK PICTURE

Cattle round a squatters' tank, with patience, wait for rain. Despondent desolation, of a windswept, one tree plain.

Scraggy stumps of salt bush, reaching, with a plea. Sheet of tin waves in the breeze, where the out station used to be.

The windmill creaks, then pauses, for the wind to catch it's breath. Old wedge tail undertaker, sits grows rich, waiting for a death. The sand, that creeping sand, it builds against the troughs

The precious water in them lies beneath a film of dust.

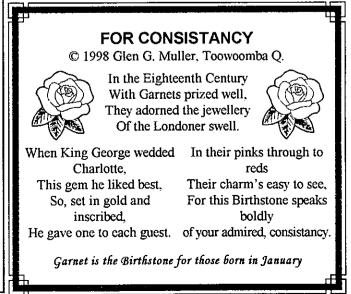

The tortured land is dying the terrible death of thirst Naked to the scorching sun, the abrasive shifting dirt. Young stock in evening cool, search feed at paddocks end. The old cows haven't the strength, to go there, and back again.

The price down at the markets has never been so high. He should've culled the oldest at the beginning of the dry. The summer rains just never came and the weeks turned into years

First the grass, then the bush, now the top soil disappears.

The manager came from somewhere east, didn't know the warning signs. Never heeded neighbours, who'd learned from other times. With cloud upon horizon line he shot five hundred head. Once again he knew it all. "Dry weather clouds" he said.

The Barcoo and the Thompson flooded Coopers Creek Lake Eyre became and inland sea, the cattle fat and sleek. And down along the water course the grass was shoulder high, He put his resignation in and the bush waved him goodbye.

THE STORM

© Ellis Campbell, Dubbo NSW Winner of Nimbin A & I Competition

I see the thunder clouds roll up, beyond the western range. A muffled steaminess proclaims a sudden weather change. A sultry sun beams fiercely down and makes the bush twigs crack; my destination seems too far along the dusty track.

From darkened valleys rumbles swell, and echo distant hill reverberate and quaver like a vibrant whippoorwill. The lightning darts - mischievous - among the scudding cloud; illuminates the mountain's dome and sheens its peak unbowed.

The thunder growls its harsh discord, with warning undertones; a sullen silence then before the fierce wind's whining groans. A lurid glaring stains the sphere and rents the frowning sky; a frenzied chain-like pattern blown, entangled and awry.

A shuddering explosion booms, vibration shakes the ground; a shattered giant disintegrates - a lofty tree earthbound. A vivid sight and awesome sound - transfixed I stand and stare; no poet's pen or artist's brush can capture or compare.

The acrid smoke is drifting low, and mingling smell of rain; the hail's onslaught looms turbulent and thunder growls again. I quail before its fierce assault - a wimp without recourse and cower, stunned and powerless, beneath unyielding force.

The rain's deluge comes streaming down, the final whim of Thor. I'm saturated, chilled and tired - yet still engrossed with awe. The trickling water's icy pang sends shivers down my spine; my squelching boots are oozing mud and sloshing creeper vine.

Fragmental patch of skittish cloud diffracts - disintegrates; a censured sun creeps shyly out where misty fog cloud waits. A smoke-like vapour rises slow, from moisturised, brown earth; the storm has spent its passion and the parched soil known rebirth.

The brain is a wonderful thing.

It never stops from the time you are born until the moment you stand up to make a speech (or recite on stage).

The future always arrives a little before you are ready to give up the past and even the future is not what it used to be.

BOOK REVIEW "A BORN LOSER CAN SOMETIMES WIN" by Ron Selby, Toowoomba Q.

President of the A.B.P.A., Ron Selby has published his first book. It is a book with a difference and a refreshing originality about it. The poet and author is not a very big man, but he is all guts, I can tell you.

His poems are written with a good sense of rhythm and rhyme. They are not the ballad type but are poems with a purpose. His strong opinions are expressed well and are in no case offensive. They give an insight into his life. And his prose - Well! I'll let you decide on that You won't stop reading half way.

Forword written by Carmel Randle. The book is well put together and features Ron's picture on the front and a delightful photo of his lovely family on the back. It also has a nice glossy cover.

I urge you to see Ron in Tamworth to buy a copy, or contact him at home. Olive Shooter.

BREAKFAST AT GLENGALLEN

The fog was still quite thick when I left home at 5.30am on Sunday, 13th November, '98 to go to the Glengallen Festival Poets Breakfast and Competition at Allora on Queensland's Darling Downs.

By the time I arrived the skies had cleared to the normal sunshine us Queenslanders usually enjoy. I had never been to Allora before and what a pretty little place it is. I now understand why Olive lives there!

I was talking with 'Boulia" Bates and Bill Hay when Ron Selby arrived and we ventured inside the hall. We were soon joined by Olive Shooter and the Dunn family and young Jennifer Haig. Merv and Chris Webster shared a table with me and some of my friends who had come along to give me some moral support, Tom Clark and his wife.

The competition started a bit late but that's nothing unusual. It consisted of Open Traditional, Original and Humorous with no apparent time limit, in fact the entry form made no mention of 'rules'. I guess I'm still learning about performance competitions !! There was also a Junior Competition with the same categories as the Open, and of course an Overall Champion (the poet with the most points scored). The following are the results:

Junior Traditional: 1st Jennifer Haig, 2nd Leisa Marie Jactwitz. Junior Original: 1st Jennifer Haig, 2nd Leisa Marie Jactwitz. Junior Humorous: 1st Jennifer Haig, 2nd Leisa Marie Jactwitz. Open Trad.: 1st Carmel Dunn, 2nd Bill Hay, 3rd Merv Webster Open Orig: 1st Ron Bates, 2nd Merv Webster, 3rd Carmel Dunn Open Humorous: 1st Carmel Dunn, 2nd Chris Webster, 3rd .. Dead Heat - Bill Hay and Ron Bates.

Overall Champion - Jennifer Haig

Some very nice trophies were presented to the winners and place getters, and I missed out again !!! Oh well, next time ??? The judges included Olive Shooter and Ron Selby and I didn't envy their tasks and of course as they always do, they did a great job. I guess if the Festival is on again next year, I'll wind up the old alarm clock and head off at some unholy hour on a Sunday morning and once again visit Allora and maybe next time I'll win something

Se ya 'round the 'traps' - have a great New Year,

Kev J. Barnes. 'The Legend'

A GOOD MATE

© Ron Selby, Toowoomba Q.

Life sometimes may get you down — Make you feel like giving in. Problems hassles causing your frown? You feel you cannot win?

So you're on the losing end And no-one gives a damn? Worries send you round the bend? You're really in a jam.

You can't go on feeling blue And blame it all on fate. You'll find two heads are better than one When you have a real good mate!

There are Jacarandas blooming up above the traffic lights; I can see them from my window as I watch the city sights; And I wonder how such beauty can exist here, side by side With the Cancer Clinic, where the sad and very sick reside.

There are faces burnt and blistered, there are lungs that aren't the best; There are voices you can barely hear; there's cancer of the breast. Many men with prostrate cancer feeling slightly woebegone, Come and have a radiation course and hope their battle's won.

It's a sad and pain filled section but it's seldom they complain. They prefer to quietly take a pill to dissipate the pain. And you'll find there's much more to them when you get to know them well,

For they have a fearless spirit that will see them to the bell.

At the Wesley Cancer Centre where this saga's taking place, Things are handled by a team that works with dignity and grace. There's always a friendly greeting, every day a happy smile, And I'd say they're much like Angels, only Angels aren't my style.

Now the Jacaranda blossoms are all falling from the trees, And colouring the parkland where they're carried by the breeze. But next spring they'll reappear and thrill us with their gorgeous hue; And I hope our patients, like the trees, are once more, blooming too.

MOMENTS TRAPPED IN TIME © John Harris, Kalang NSW

The poet has to photograph these things inside his head Then use his craft to spell it out the way it should be said. You've got to sit and think of it and sort it in your mind, Sift the words through carefully, until at last you find The words that paint it perfectly, that tell the story right Then find a pen and paper and find a spot to write The words that paint the blackest black and sheer clear dazzling white That lead you from the heat of day into the gloom of night.

That focus on an urchin's stare, or a hostile face of crowd The emptiness of cemeteries, the soft white down of clouds. The lightning's flash and thunder crash in the fearsome might of storms Or the softest, palest tinge of pink that lights the sky at dawn. The football crowd that burns the seats, their anger on display, Or the contrast of the little tots, who laugh and run and play. The dog who sits and chews his bone, as happy as can be Or the dog who's lost, and sits and waits in abject misey.

The beauty of the butterfly, as it sits and dries it's wings, Or the rapture of a young, pure face, when the Luton Choir sings. The softeness of a fluffy duck, when first it takes to water, Or the twisted bloated bodies of the victims of some slaughter.

These are the things the poets see, to commit to verse and rhyme To make a lasting memory of a moment trapped in time.

SAVAGE GARDEN FURNITURE © Judy Osborne, Cheepie Q.

The horse was grazing on the lawn, Contented, quiet and calm; There was nothing in the garden To do her any harm But she must have got her tail caught In an old cane garden chair -It took a hold and chased around A very startled mare! She galloped past us in a tizz, The dogs and I, we scattered -She had to lose that blasted chair And that was all that mattered. She bucked and thrashed and galloped, But all to no avail: The bloody chair kept following -It had her by the tail. There was only one solution -The chair would have to die ... So she gave it double-barreled hooves And kicked that chair sky-high.

POETRY IN GULGONG, NSW

On Saturday, 12th December, Sue & I set out for a Poets Breakfast at Gulgong, having to leave at the early hour of 2.30am.

Arriving at about 6.45 am we were greeted by five barbecues running full blast, and on each, bacon, eggs, mushrooms, steak, mince hamburgers and sausages and an old iron bathtub full of every can of soft drink you can name.

We make our own sandwiches (meaning one or five of bacon and anything else we wished). As much as we could eat as often as we wanted - all available until 11am and amazingly, everything was free !!

The venue was a large area beside the Shell garage at Gulgong. The sound system was perfect, loaned by a local rock band's owner, Brett Hollyoak. Brett also was kind enough to operate the system and did a top notch job for the entire time.

The host was a gentleman named Dave Morrison who owned the Shell garage and throughout the entire morning, made certain we never went without. He doesn't write or perform, he just loves to listen to good traditional poetry - What a groupie !!!

Sadly, Dave wasn't able to advertise the venue because of time commitments, but will be doing an extensive advertising program next year. I have personally promised a good line-up of poets next year.

There was a small line up of poets, and a singer, Jim Westwood who recited his songs - most impressive, especially a piece called "True Facts".

My son Bruce, a new member of our Association also performed a very moving original called "Tears of Despair", a story of the rape and pillage of the land in which we live. Bruce is a newcomer and I'm sure, at his steady rate of improvement we will see more of him on stage in the future. I also contributed my own poetry on the day.

This was a great venue, to which I will definitely return next year, and I recommend it to all poets worth their salt to support this group of people for the enthusiasm and zeal they put into the show. Bill Lasham, North Rocks, NSW.

PALMA ROSA HAPPYNINGS

from Trisk Anderson

In October we were entertained by the poets from North Pine - what a talented group of people! Led by their president, Graham Fredericksen, who was joined by Anita Reid, Carol Stratford, Tony Dale and John Best, we were taken through a whole world of bush poetry, the poets reciting gems from Lawson, Paterson and other masters - to many poems of their own and the contemporary poets such as Milton Taylor.

December saw us showcase singer/songwriter Mark Tempany who has gone from strength to strength. He was joined by the great poet from Susan River Homestead Guy McLean (and of course) his faithful steed, "Nuggett". This man and his horse are something to be seen - the "Horse Whisperer" had nothing compared with Guy!

"Nugget" came up on the stage - Guy delivered his beautiful sensitive poems and then "Nugget" happily stepped off the stage amidst amazing applause - he is completely at home as long as Guy is with him.

We had a beautiful night - the weather was kind and 120 happy people sat out on the back lawn under the stars (and a full moon) with our beautiful heritage listed "Palma Rosa" as the back drop - a truly wonderful night.

Many thanks to everyone for supporting the Palma Rosa Poets and Palma Rosa - we hope you have a wonderful

AMBROSE

© 1998 Dorothy Carmody, Warrell Creek,

To Adelaide they came in droves. They came from far and wide. One can tell the country folk By the swag of their backside.

Then there's the hats, all practical With back and front turned down That lets the rain run off real well, Not like those mugs in town.

All came to see the Windies play. To watch young Ambrose have a go. He may straighten out Border's men, But how much they didn't know.

He bowls them hard, he bowls them fast. The batters blink as they go past. They sometimes duck and straighten out. Anything, to avoid that dreaded clout.

If the batter dares to make a stroke He forgets the wicket and hits the bloke. There's more than one way to win the game, Just line them up and take good aim.

Now Boon was out for a golden duck, And had plenty of mates to follow. With seven down for seventy-seven Caused the Aussies tears and sorrow. festive season and I look forward to seeing many of you in Tamworth.

NEW YEAR PRESENTATION

On Wed. Feb. 3rd at 7pm, we are fortunate to be able to present to you the one and only legendary poet, author and lyricist Kelly Dixon from Camooweal in Queensland - well known to many of us for his wonderful ballads made famous by the likes of Slim Dusty and Lee Kernaghan - one of the better known being "Leave him in the Longyard".

We are hoping we will be joined by Kelly's great friend and fellow poet Bruce Forbes-Simpson, the only Australian Poet to have won two Bronze Swagman Awards.

They will be backed by singer/songwriter Mark Tempany who has entertained us so often at Palma Rosa.

Kelly Dixon, beside being the author of so many wonderful poems and songs has also produced two novels, one book of verse and a cassette of his poetry. He began writing poetry at 12 years of age and has gone on to become one of our greatest poets, performing to audiences all over Australia. Earlier this year he and Bruce Forbes-Simpson, were two of four poets invited to perform at the Royal Melbourne Show. He is also one of the most respected judges of Bush Poetry in Australia.

In Kelly's words, Bruce Forbes-Simpson is "the greatest writer of Bush Verse in Australia today - not only does he write about it - he has done it all!" He has produced in these serious kinda shindles.

Why! Langer was a novice, An untried bat against the Windies. And McDermott much preferred the ball

While Ambrose wore a winning smile That split his face a country mile.McDermott wore a stuck out chin, A sign that heels were digging in.

The Windies misjudged Aussie blood. Stressed - it flows as thick as mud. The should have learned in times of yore, Just what is bred on Australia's shore.

Ball by ball the battle raged. Agog, the audience was quiet dazed. This tale was strong and how it wagged In a game that Ambrose thought was bagged.

One seventy one, three, four, five, The match had certainly come alive. Pressure was Ambrose's worry now. Sweat dripped from McDermott's brow.

One more to go for a series win, When the crowd roared a deafening din.

The umpire's finger went up high. "That's not out" the fans all cry.

McDermott walked, straight and tall. He knew his bat never hit that ball. His victory, he had conquered fears Of Windies' demon all those years.

Ambrose with his magic ball. Ambrose stands two metres tall. Ambrose's arms are long and thick and reach half way down the cricket pitch. three books - "The Territory Rouseabout", " The Packhorse Drover" and "In the Steps of Leichhardt" and a CD ABC released by in conjunction with Ted Egan. He is currently writing his fourth book as well as being a technical advisor for Ted Egan in the production of his "The magnificent film Drovers Boy".

These three men are all incredibly talented - what brilliant entertainment it will be.

"From the dust of the camps to the stockyards To the glare of the city and town I have threaded these stories together And in verse I have jotted them down.

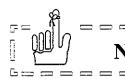

I have mustered my forests of memories ' They are drafted - some fiction, some true Now, to share with my readers, my memories -I offer these verses to you."

MAURICE SAGOFF 1909 - 1998

ņ

A master of terse verse Maurice Sagoff has died at a hospital near his home in Massachussetts. He was 88 and author of Shrinklits.

Subtitled 70 of the World's Towering Classics Cut down to Size, the book abbreviated great literature into short verse. Here is Sagoff's version of Crime and Punishment.

> Up-tight student Axes pair. Fearful, with the Cops aware. Yet vainglorious, He won't chicken

Till by Saintly Sonia stricken; Then confession Trial and sentence: Eight Siberian years Repentance Floods his spirit, Hang-us cease She will join him Seeking peace ... In that bleak Siberian hovel, Watch him, Sonia With that shovel. For much of his life off had been content with Sagoff had been content with Dostoyevsky's original. Then he read about universities cutting funds for libraries and it set him to thinking - a process that for Sagoff frequently veered into the absurd. He came up with the idea that if library space was at a premium, the world needed a three-centimetre shelf of great literature.

Sagoff shared his view in a tongue in cheek 1968 article for Mademoiselle magazine, which included an abbreviated Alice in Wonderland:

Holed up With bunny Pre-teen Acts funny Aberrations Hallucinations Wild scenes Tarts, Queens, Clearly, she Needs therapy. For Sagoff, who for years dashed off doggerel to celebrate special occasions, the excursion into mock literature might mercifully have ended there if the verse had not caught the eye of a New York book editor who commissioned that book.

It was a huge success and is still in print with new classics.

Sagoff's first wife died in 1969. He is survived by his second wife, Charlotte, and two children, Sarah and Mark.

THE LAST WORD FROM THE EDITOR

Dear Members,

I would like to take this opportunity, to wish all poets who will be on stage in Tamworth, the very best of luck for their respective appearances throughout the festival. This year, we have a wonderful choice of Festival venues and competitions which will display the enormous talent of our Bush Poetry performers, many of whom will be performing for the first time.

While preparing the information relative to the Festival, I felt justly proud that Bush Poetry indeed provides a great drawcard for this, and many other such festivals, offering a uniquely Australian form of entertainment to the many thousands who attend specifically to enjoy the spoken word. Along the way we will continue to attract new interest, due in no small way to the talents of our wonderful poets.

A special note of thanks must go to someone who has been of great assistance to me, as Editor throughout the last year. The lady of whom I speak is my proof reader and BP groupie, Heather Heywood who does a great job in helping to bring to you a quality publication. Thanks Heather, you're a "Champion". Take care everyone and I'll hopefully see many of you at our AGM, Mauren Garner, Editor
